A great museum if you are into American history. Admission is with guided tours only, and it makes sense - the house isn't big, and a guided tour provides you with the history of the house. Great souvenir shop. We enjoyed our tour, our only suggestion is to focus more on the history of the Confederacy rather than on personal stories. We were disappointed that the third floor was closed to the public. The museum is worth visiting.

Very educational. The way they produced cannons and other goods with the power of the river was definitely a fantastic tour!

Interesting historical sight. The guides on the guided tour bring the history to life. Worth a stop. Parking is free (be sure the museum staff validate your parking ticket) and integrated with the hospital complex but the parking spots on the parking structure are narrow and tight and there were not many open spots when I visited. Extra caution is you have a large vehicle.
