

Dear Latino Book Review,

I am writing to provide an external evaluation of your organization's progress and results in promoting and increasing the visibility of Latinx literature and authors. After reviewing your website, social media channels, magazine, podcast, and other materials, as well as conducting research on the impact of your efforts, I can say with confidence that your organization has made significant strides in achieving its goals.

Firstly, your commitment to reviewing and promoting books written by Latinx authors or that deal with Latinx themes has helped to raise awareness of these important voices and stories. Your website features a wealth of insightful and informed reviews that provide readers with valuable insights into the themes, characters, and cultural context of these books. Additionally, your book lists, author profiles, and writing tips provide valuable resources and information to support and encourage the creation and dissemination of Latinx literature.

Secondly, your advocacy efforts to promote greater representation and visibility of Latinx voices in the literary world have also been impactful. Your partnerships with publishers and literary organizations, as well as your outreach efforts to writers and readers, have helped to increase the number of books by Latinx authors and ensure that they are marketed and promoted effectively. This has led to increased recognition and visibility for Latinx literature and authors, which is a significant accomplishment.

Lastly, your commitment to promoting literacy and education through the promotion of diverse and representative literature is also commendable. By highlighting books that feature diverse characters and themes, you are helping to promote empathy and understanding across cultures, which is critical in today's increasingly diverse and interconnected world.

Overall, I believe that your organization has made significant progress in achieving its goals and has had a meaningful impact in the literary world. Your efforts to promote and increase the visibility of Latinx literature and authors are commendable, and I look forward to seeing the continued growth and success of your organization in the future.

Sincerely,

Dr. Etna Avalos
Assistant Professor of Spanish and Latin American Studies etna.avalos@macewan.ca