Participant Snapshot: Ford Foundation International Fellowship Program

Caroline Lentupuru is a Ford IFP alumna from Kenya who earned an MA in International Development from Clark University in 2010. After graduating, Caroline won an Outstanding Commitment Award from the Clinton Global Initiative for her Rainfed Farm Project in the Rift Valley, where she worked with students on school farms to build rain-collecting furrows that increase small crop yields. She currently designs education workshops and local health campaigns to empower young girls in her Maasai community.

Last year, IIE worked to place approximately 2,300 students in academic and short-term programs in the U.S. and abroad.
Participant Snapshot: TechWomen

Since completing her TechWomen mentorship in the U.S., Rayane Hazimeh (on left) has returned to Lebanon, where she is preparing to launch Noura Techadventures, an online animation series to inspire involvement in STEM fields. Funded by the U.S. Department of State, the TechWomen Program pairs women in Silicon Valley with their counterparts in the Middle East and North Africa for a professional mentorship and exchange program at leading technology companies.

IIE helped to train more than 12,000 women in technology and social media for professional use through IIE-managed programs.
