To Whom It May Concern,

This letter is to offer my support to the Mission Fulfilled 2030 nonprofit organization and its vision to bridge the Technical Education Gap for untapped diverse talent from disadvantaged and underserved communities.

We partnered with Mission Fulfilled 2030 this school year to launch their Youth Tech Entrepreneurs Program with our entire Sophomore class at University Preparatory High School for Young Men (UPREP) in Rochester, New York. The program has exceeded our expectations for our young men and I believe the impact will be life-changing for them.

The program helped many young men start their own tech companies and really embrace what they learned beyond the classroom. The feedback from our in-class CTE instructor has been very positive in regard to the hands-on technologies that our boys were exposed to that will prepare them for the IT world whether they are going on to college or entering the workforce.

We at UPREP are looking forward to year two as we believe this partnership benefits our students, not only as a workforce development program but it also provides STEM-based mentorship that guides our students toward careers in technology that are good fits for who they are as individuals. I believe that this program will provide the type of future outcomes that will not only benefit our students but the community at large.

Please don't hesitate to contact me if we may provide any additional information.

Sincerely,

Tracy Y. Harris
Director of Career & Technical Education

The Mission of the University Preparatory Charter School for Young Men is to establish a culture where all students thrive academically and holistically. UPREP develops this culture through small classes, student empowerment, personalized attention, and a consistent focus on successful outcomes. A continuous emphasis is placed on preparation for life after high school, a 100% graduation rate, and all students being college or career ready.
